Anti-Stephenson Senators Make Claim That Assembly Hinders Their Work Of Investigation.

WANT TO CONTINUE FARCE LONGER

Matter Will Be Decided On Friday Morning When It Is The Special Order Of Business In The Sen- ate--Other Matters Taken Up.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 26.—There will be war from now on between the three anti-Stephenson members of the special senate investigation committee and the members of the assembly. The three senators this morning made a partial report of their labors, charging the members of the assembly committee with all sorts of horrible things.

Hindered Investigation.
Senators Marsh, Morris and Hastings, all anti-Stephenson men, claimed that the assembly members of the joint committee hindered the investigation so as to protect Senator Stephenson. They also charged Senator Stephenson and his helpers with evasion of subpoenas and refusal to testify when called upon to do so.

Left State.
They even claimed that men wanted to appear before the committee had gone to Washington, to Canada, Arizona and even to Europe rather than appear when summoned, and had remained away so as to be out of reach of legal summons to come before the committee to give their testimony.

Assembly As Well.
As an organized body the assembly

PIONEER CITIZEN OF CHICAGO CELEBRATES

Fernando Jones, Seventy-five Years Old, Celebrates His Ninth Year Of Age.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Chicago, Ill., May 26.—Fernando Jones, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Chicago, celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday today with a reunion and reception held in Memorial Hall under the auspices of Chicago Pioneers' Sons and Daughters. Mr. Jones has been closely identified with the growth and progress of the Western metropolis for nearly seventy years, and many of those who for a portion of that time have been associated with him either personally or in a business way were in attendance to do him honor.

Fernando Jones, by reason of his long residence and his prominence in business and public affairs, is regarded as Chicago's foremost citizens. Born in Chautauque county, New York, in 1825, he came to Chicago in 1855, when old Fort Dearborn was a conspicuous landmark at the mouth of the Chicago river and when the Indians of the vicinity outnumbered the whites. In the early days of his residence here Mr. Jones engaged in trade with the Indians and became a member of the Potawatomi tribe. As a youth he was employed in the land office and when he reached his majority he engaged in the abstract business and compiled abstracts of all the titles in Cook county. These became enormously valuable when the official records of the county were destroyed in the great Chicago fire. Mr. Jones was active in civil war days and was one of those who helped to establish Camp Douglas, where many Confederate prisoners were confined.

LONG FIGHT ENDED; HOPKINS HAS LOST THE SENATORSHIP

Congressman Lorimer Aided by Democrats Succeeds in Securing the Vote Necessary to Choose.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Springfield, Ill., May 26.—The long fight over the Senatorial election ended this afternoon when aided by democratic and anti-Stephenson votes, William Lorimer was elected United States Senator from Illinois to succeed Albert J. Hopkins of Aurora.

On the ninety-fifth joint ballot the vote stood: Hopkins, 52; Lorimer, 12; Stricker, 7; six democrats voting for Lorimer in the senate. Then came the final count and the former Post and Herald editor began looking to Lorimer and a number of democrats followed so quickly that the landslide began in earnest. Logan and McNamee, former strong Hopkins men, led the desertion from their candidate.

At 2 P. M. Hopkins had 61 votes and Lorimer 77 and the count was still going on. Of the 89 house members who voted for Lorimer, 47 were democrats and 42 republicans.

In all Lorimer received 103 votes. His election came about through the coalition of democratic assemblymen and the anti-Hopkins republicans.

Strong efforts were made by Hopkins' aides to head off the break for Lorimer, but they were unavailable. The last act of the deadlock which has dragged since January 20th was played to a small crowd.

In many of the joint ballots nearly one hundred candidates, the great majority of them democrats, have been listed for United States senators.

POLITICAL RIGHTS WILL BE DISCUSSED

Negro Political League Will Seek To Get Darkies To Vote For Rights
Rather Than Party.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Columbus, O., May 26.—In response to the call recently issued by President J. Milton Brown, of Washington, D. C., a number of delegates gathered in this city today for the second annual meeting of the National Negro American Political League. The sessions will continue over tomorrow.

Governor Harmon and ex-Senator Parker are scheduled among the speakers. One of the sessions will be devoted to the memory of John Brown.

The league, which claims a membership among over twenty states, was formed at Philadelphia about a year ago as a merger of a number of national, state and local political organizations. Its purpose is to convince colored voters, particularly in the North and West, of the necessity of using their ballots primarily to secure race rights, rather than in the interest of any political party.

NEW LAWS ABOLISH THE BUCKET SHOPS

Kansas Anti-Bucket Shop and Other States Become Effective Next Saturday.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Topeka, Kan., May 26.—Nearly all the laws enacted by the recent session of the Kansas legislature will become effective next Saturday, the date of the publication of the 1909 statutes. The most notable exception is the bank guaranty law, which will not come into effect until the last of June. Among the more important of the new laws to become operative Saturday are the following:

The anti-bucket shop law abolishes bucket shops throughout the state, a child labor law barring child actors in the theaters and all boys under 14 years of age from the messenger service, a law making it a crime for employer of a printing office to smuggle out teachers' examination questions, a law requiring managers of political campaigns to file a statement of receipts and expenditures, and a law making it possible for a district judge to become a candidate for Representative in Congress or United States Senator.

Other laws to come into effect are those providing additional fire protection for schools and hotels, making it a crime to kill American eagles, providing for a comprehensive system of warehouse receipts, establishing a new code of civil procedure, making it a crime for fruit tree agents to misrepresent the brand of fruit trees they sell, and requiring all factories and railroads to report accidents to the state labor bureau within twenty-four hours after they occur.

WILL TRY PORTLAND INDIAN FOR MURDER

Oregon Aborigine Charged With Fleeting Crime—Shot Victim
From Behind.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Portland, Ore., May 26.—The case of William Barkley, a Umatilla Indian charged with the murder of Sid O. Jacobs, a white man, will be called for trial in the federal court tomorrow. The killing of Jacobs was one of the most heinous murders in the criminal annals of Oregon.

Trouble between Barkley and Jacobs originated several years ago when Barkley lost a valuable horse and accused Jacobs of stealing the animal. Later the friendly relations between the two men were apparently resumed, though subsequent developments showed that the Indian was merely biding his time to become revenged.

On the day of the alleged murder Barkley approached Jacobs with the request that he accompany him to the top of a distant hill, where he believed he had made a discovery that would be of value to both of them. Before starting on the walk the Indian is said to have provided himself with a revolver and a scalping knife, and to have confided to an old Indian woman that Jacobs would never come back alive.

When Barkley returned alone from the hill climb he is said to have confided to the old Indian woman how he had killed Jacobs. According to the story, when the two had reached the top of the hill, Barkley fell back a few steps, took careful aim and shot Jacobs in the back of the head. Then he rushed forward with his scalping knife, according to his story, cut his victim's throat and did a demon dance around the prostrate form.

LACKAWANA RAILWAY WILL OBEY THE LAW

Stockholders Of Anthracite Railroad Will Make Changes Necessary By Hephburn Law.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, May 26.—The directors of the Lackawanna, Lackawanna and Western, the only anthracite coal road which mines and transports its own coal and sells it at terminal points in its own name, will meet tomorrow to consider plans for bringing the operations of the company within the requirements of the commodities clause of the Hepburn law as interpreted by the Supreme Court in the decision recently handed down.

The decision, in the opinion of counsel, leaves the way open to the Lackawanna either to place its coal lands in a holding company the stock of which could either be distributed to the Lackawanna stockholders or held in the road's treasury, or else to form a company for the operation of the mines or for the sale of the coal after it has been mined. It is said that the Lackawanna stockholders will be called upon to decide which plan shall be adopted.

JEROME WILL PUT IN LIVELY EVENING

District Attorney Of New York, Agrees
To Answer Questions Received Has Dashed Banket Full.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, May 26.—What promises to be a lively and interesting meeting with District Attorney William T. Jerome as the target for questions to be fired at him in regard to the conduct of his office during the last seven years is to be held at Cooper Union tonight. The meeting, which is to be held under the auspices of the People's Institute, was granted at the request of the institute, and frequent interruptions from his audience, several weeks ago.

Mr. Jerome has promised to answer all questions provided they have been submitted to him in writing in advance, in order that he might have opportunity to make a thorough and accurate examination of the cases in which they refer. It was said at his office today that the number of questions he had received would fill a bushel basket.

While the officials of the People's Institute insist that the meeting is to be devoid of political significance, a lively evening is expected.

EPISCOPAL COUNCIL IN FAIRBAULT, MINN.

Diocese Of Minnesota Will Elect
Coadjutor To Bishop—Presbyterians In Knoxville.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Fairbault, Minn., May 26.—Indica-tions are that the Episcopal council which convened here today will take no action looking to the division of the Episcopal diocese of Minnesota into two dioceses nor for the creation of a bishop-coadjutor to assist Bishop Edsall, though both proposals will be exhaustively discussed. The expense attendant upon the proposed changes is urged as the principal reason why they should not be made at the present time.

A full attendance of delegates marked the opening of the council session this morning. Included among those present were many persons of prominence, both clergy and laymen. The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. George C. Tanner, D. D., who was present at the first council at which Bishop Whipple presided fifty years ago. This afternoon, after the work of organization had been completed, Bishop Edsall delivered his annual address. The council will remain in session several days.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 26.—Several hundred delegates and visitors, representing a total of over 150,000 communicants, are gathered in Knoxville for the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church. The meeting is the first of its kind that the church has ever held in this section. The formal opening took place today in the chapel of Knoxville College, during which time the missionary, educational and other activities of the church for the past year will be reviewed and plans outlined for the future.

MYSTERIOUS FOUR A PUZZLE TO POLICE

Geneva Authorities Can Discover Nothing About Men Arrested For Attempted Fraud.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Geneva, May 26.—Four men who have been in custody here for several weeks are a sore puzzle to the Swiss police. The parties, who are either American or English, are suspected of belonging to a gang of international swindlers, and the police have communicated with New York, London and other cities, to discover if anything is known there about them. The only charge made so far is that they attempted to defraud local tradesmen. When arrested they had much false and valuable jewelry and precious stones. No papers were found on them, they carried no baggage, and clothing as that no clue might lead to their identification. Another curious phase of the case is that the men claimed any acquaintance with each other, though all arrived in Geneva at the same time and put up at the same hotel.

HIGH LICENSE WAS FINALLY DEFEATED

Assembly Turns Down Measure to Make $1000 License in All Cities of State.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 26.—High li-cense was killed by a decisive vote in the assembly yesterday afternoon, the vote being 64 to 21. This bill was introduced by Assemblyman Chapelle of Ashland and provided for a license of $200 in all towns not containing incorporated villages or cities. The original bill placed the maximum at $1000 but an amendment, which first was passed, cut out this feature of the Chapelle bill. The remaining portion of the measure then was killed, the vote being about the same as on most liquor questions before the present legislature.

Without debate the assembly passed the Brown bill to permit boxing exhibitions of thirty minutes' duration under strict regulation. The vote was 37 to 21. An hour was spent in discussing the Gaylord bill permitting a wife to go to court if she believed her husband was not furnishing enough "pin money." The debate disclosed that the bill was drawn particularly to help an Eau Claire woman who had sought a divorce twice and been denied. The vote was killed by a vote of 44 to 25. The Brazan bill providing univocally appropriations was made a special order for Thursday morning.

Assemblyman Hull's bill aimed at centralizing creamery companies, was passed without trouble, there being no debate or objection. The bill now goes to the senate for final action.

The joint resolution by Senator Bird permitting the state to appropriate in excess of $100,000 to purchase lands so that water powers may be developed and forests replanted, was referred to the special waterpowers committee which will work during the summer and fall. As Assemblyman Moser Shaw made the motion and reference of this bill, ward has gone out that it is the first earnest that the farmers actually intend to delay appropriation bills through a spirit of revenge-born when their pet bill, the binder twine, measure was killed.

GAME LAWS ARE UP TOMORROW MORNING

Proposed Measure Will Be Considered Tomorrow by the Assembly
—Some Changes.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 26.—On Thurs-day morning the senate will consider the provisions of the new fish and game bill, which was received from the committee on fish and game last Saturday. This measure is an attempt to unify the present laws on the subject and cover over forty-five pages of printed matter. Some of the changes in the game law with respect to the duties of the chief warden indicate that a lesson has been taught by the evidence of the senatorial investigating committee.

While the governor formerly chose the state fish and game warden, the bill makes confirmation by the senate necessary. He may hereafter be removed for "inefficiency or neglect of duty." The salary of the chief warden is increased from $1,500 to $2,000 annually. Formerly no bond was furnished, but the bill requires the furnishing of a bond of at least $5,000. The state warden shall appoint sixty wardens from civil service lists and all of their actions must be subject to the provisions of the civil service act. An annual report must be furnished the governor. "All wardens shall devote their time exclusively to the performance of the duties of their office," says the bill.

For the first time in Wisconsin non-residents over 16 years of age are compelled to pay a license fee of $1 for fishing with hook and line. A fee of 50 cents is charged if the license has been lost in order to obtain a new one. This license fee is charged for other hunting are the same as are charged today. Under the present bill, however, only one deer can be killed instead of two as allowed under the old law.

The bill completely describes the classifications of game fish and rough fish in different sections of the state, but only a few of the provisions relate to special localities.

Any person who shall take or molest a nest or the eggs of a harmless bird shall be punished not less than $5 or more than $25 according to the provisions of this bill. The bill contains more provisions than any other measure that has been introduced in the legislature this year. Scores of pages are required in order to make some slight correction in the detail of the law. The measure has been favorably passed upon by both the senate and assembly committees on fish and game and will undoubtedly pass with strong opposition.

INSURANCE CONCERNS TO RETURN TO STATE

Present Legislature Has Altered the Obnoxious Laws of 1907 to Suit Their Needs.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 26.—Six of the scores or more life insurance companies which withdrew from Wisconsin as a result of the obnoxious insurance laws enacted by the legislature of 1907, will re-enter this state on or before July 1, having announced that changes in the laws made by the present legislature are satisfactory. The expense for returning to this field is given as chapter 120 of the laws of 1909, making a clear definition of the term "expense charges" as used in the law of 1907. As the definition established in this new law merely is statutory form of the interpretation of the insurance commission as to the term used, it is believed that the new law is merely an excuse of returning to the state to do business, and that the new law in fact has little to do with the change to be made by the companies. Wisconsin insurance men declare that several big life insurance companies found out that they made a costly mistake when they took umbrage at the laws of 1907 and left this rich life insurance field to other companies. Besides losing the Wisconsin business, the withdrawing companies placed themselves as being afraid of reform legislation and the result was that they supplied agents of rival companies with the strongest kind of "talking points" and lost large quantities of business in other states.

Four sticks of dynamite with a partly burned fuse attached to them was found by a member of the steamer's crew, in a discharge pipe in the ballast pump. "Only the fact that the wiring of the fuse was defective," said President Livingston, "saved the 'Hofflinger' from being destroyed."

For Twenty-Six Years

Mrs. Lamaster, of Kentucky, Suffered with Internal Catarrh and was Finally Relieved by Peruna.

MRS. W. W. LAMASTER.

447 SUFFERED for twenty-six years with bladder and kidney trouble, and being advised to give Peruna a trial, I did so, and am thankful to say that eight bottles of Peruna and three bottles of Manalin entirely cured me of that trouble, and I am as well as ever."—Mrs. W. W. Lamaster, 8127 McAtee Ave., Louisville, Ky.

Catarrh Causes Kidney Disease.

Catarrh is a frequent cause of kidney disease. The pelvis of the kidneys, as well as the tubules, is lined with mucous membrane, and is therefore subject to catarrhal congestion. Sometimes the catarrh is so slight as to cause no attention. Other times it leads up to very serious conditions.

Any remedy capable of mitigating the catarrh is a much more rational treatment than to give palliatives that only relieve the patient of one or more disagreeable symptoms.

It is claimed for Peruna that it is an internal systemic catarrh remedy, and reaches the catarrh in whatever organ it happens to be located.

"I was cured of a severe attack of inflammation of the bowels by taking Peruna. I am glad to recommend Peruna to any one."—Mrs. J. J. Brown, 553 Water St., San Antonio, Texas.

JANESVILLE WAS VISITED BY A REAL EARTHQUAKE THIS MORNING

SEISMIC DISTURBANCE BEGAN AT 8:39 AND LASTED SEVERAL SECONDS.

PEOPLE BADLY FRIGHTENED

Ran from Buildings and Homes—Bells Rang and Windows and Dishes Rattled—Salvation Army Captain Was Reading Psalm 60, Verse 8, at the Time.

Janesville and the surrounding country as far west as the Mississippi river, as far south as central Illinois, and beyond Lake Michigan on the east were visited by a pronounced seismic disturbance shortly after eight o'clock this morning. Many people who heard windows and dishes rattle or witnessed the vibrations of other inanimate objects were both to credit the evidence of their senses and hoping that they had been the victims of a hallucination, ran out of their homes and business establishments to meet others who had been moved by a similar impulse and were the same disturbed, inquiring expressions on their countenances. Conservative individuals who had not been in a position to carefully observe the phenomenon volunteered the opinion that the severe men had set off a blast on Pearl street and treated the whole subject with levity. These conjectures, however, were quickly set at rest by the reports which began to come in by telephone and telegraph from neighboring and distant cities.

About 8:39 A. M. the shock was felt at 8:39 and lasted but a few seconds, but long enough, however, to keep the telephone wires busy into the offices of the two telephone companies and the Gazette office for some time afterward.

It was apparently more distinctly felt on the higher portions of the city where many women and children were badly frightened. Buildings shook severely and windows rattled, but as far as can be learned no direct damage was done in any particular locality.

Reports from Footville and Magnolia show that it was felt there quite severely, but no damage was done. Reports from the Wisconsin Telephone company's offices in Galena, Freeport, Dubuque, Shullsburg, Whitewater, De Witt and Rockford also state that distinct shocks were felt there.

The center of the disturbance appears to have been at Port Byron, Illinois, located on the Mississippi river in Rock Island county. From this point it appears to have diverged north, south, east and west. At Rockford it was quite distinctly felt, as it was in Beloit. An Associated Press dispatch from Chicago gives the following account of the shock:

The Dispatch. Chicago, May 26.—A distinct earthquake shock was felt throughout northern Illinois today. The motion was from north to south and lasted half a minute. The quake was reported especially noticeable in and about Elgin and Aurora and as far west as Davenport, Iowa.

Later Report. The shock is reported as having occurred between 8:37 and 8:55, lasting from two seconds to three minutes. No one was killed, no one was injured, nor did the reports show any severe minor damages, such as breaking dishes and china or porcelain ornaments thrown from the mantelpieces.

The shock was felt throughout Illinois, Iowa, southern Wisconsin, and eastern Michigan.

Railroad Office Reports. At the local C. & N. W. passenger station it was at first believed that a locomotive had run into the building. But not long thereafter reports began to come in from Lehigh, Leyden, Woodstock, Brookville, Madison, Evansville, Danbury, Grandview, Lake Geneva, and other points chronicling the same strange visitation.

A report from Chicago stated that the ceiling on the tenth floor of the company's general office at the corner of South Clark and Adams streets had been cracked by the shock. Engineer Manning, at work in the local yards, saw his engine sway slightly, and could scarcely believe his eyes. Another engineer took out his watch and observed that the time when the disturbance began was exactly 8:39.

A Strange Coincidence. Captain and Mrs. R. A. Fleming of the Salvation Army were reading aloud the eighth verse of the 66th Psalm of David when the underground shudder began. The Captain was visibly excited when he reached the Gazette office a few moments later with his thumb upon that passage, which reads as follows:

"The earth shook, the heavens also dropped at the presence of God. Even Sinai itself was moved at the presence of God, the God of Israel."

Rang Elevator Bells. Manager G. W. Squires of the Hotel Myers was at the desk when the three bells in the elevator rang almost simultaneously. There was no bell-boy at hand, so he hastened to the lift and took the car up through the various floors. Every indicator on the keyboard pointed to a call but the prospective passengers were nowhere to be found. Mr. Squires had not noticed the little "shake-up" and preserved a discreet silence regarding the incident until other people began to relate their experiences.

Courthouse Was Empty. Clerk of Court Jesse Earl relates the following: "I was talking with County Clerk Leo when the shaking began. I said to Leo: 'It's an earthquake, sure! you're alive! I'm ready but you better run!' As we hastened down through the basement we saw Francis Grant sliding down the banister." When particular inquiries were made of Mr. Earl regarding Mr. Grant's mode of exit, he amended his answer by declaring that though the court stenographer was not actually sitting, he was taking three steps at a time. The clerk of court declares that there was a slight, preliminary shock, followed in few seconds by one that was somewhat more severe, and a slight sound of wrenching, rattling masonry. The courthouse is so solidly grounded and so far from street-collars, street-cars, and the highways that it has never before been known to quiver on any provocation, whatsoever. All the officers and clerks lost little time in getting on the outside. Mr. Earl afterwards telephoned his father who lives on a farm near Evansville and learned that the shock had been felt there also.

Tinware Disturbed. O. S. Rhoads in Sheldon's hardware store talking to Miss Earhart when all the tinware in the rear of the establishment suddenly moved aside with a strange thumping motion. The jar was felt in Putnam's furniture store adjoining and Douglas King rushed into Sheldon's to find a store full of tinware. Charles Conrad was in the second story of his building on South Main street and thought that the whole structure was coming down about his ears. His second thought was that a barrel of whiskey had dropped in McKelvey's saloon below him. Strangely enough the same conjecture occurred to H. G. Carter whose insurance office is located over Harry Thometz's sample room. Fred Baker thought that the carpenters remodeling the offices above the Baker pharmacy had dropped a heavy timber. Charles Connel was certain that the road-roller or some other extraordinary heavy vehicle was passing over the Milwaukee street bridge. The bridge at the time, turned quickly and glanced behind him, expecting to see a circus elephant or some other ponderous object close upon his heels. George Monchow was fixing a pair of spectacles in Koebelin's jewelry store and they trembled so violently as to nearly escape from his fingers. He was shaking some, himself, when he got clear of the store. Dr. M. H. McInnis received a telephone call from his wife asking if there had been a big explosion downtown.

Rang Japanese Bell. Mrs. Robert Hockett reported from the L. L. Loringwell home on North First street that a string of graduated Japanese chimes had trembled and tickled. A dish was shaken off the wall at R. M. Rodewig's home, 419 Court street. Dr. C. G. Dwight was sitting at the breakfast table with his little daughter when the cup of cocoa which she was holding suddenly slipped over. Frank A. Blackman saw the safe vibrate in his quarters in the Jackson block. A. C. Thorpe, clerk of the municipal court, witnessed the same phenomenon in his office. M. P. Richardson saw the sewing-machine at his home going through some strange contortions. His sister, Miss Sarah Richardson, who had experienced similar shocks in California, declared that the phenomenon was "identical with, though not as severe as the customary golden state quake. Mrs. Peter Chapman, Mrs. John Hall, Mrs. John J. Kohler, and Mrs. Navilla Hagar were all frightened from their homes on Carter avenue. C. C. MacLean felt the shock in his factory office and went out into the main building to see if the dynamo had started. Miss Belle MacLean saw the electric light bracket in the electric fan in Judge Tallman's office. Stanley Tallman, who was at his home on Jackson street, heard the windows rattle and thought that the brakes were being set on some heavy train below him. Mrs. Thoroughgood could not be persuaded to re-enter her home for some time and Mrs. Harris, who resides on Milwaukee avenue, and several of her neighbors came downtown to see if the earth was coming to an end. The management and guests of the Grand hotel knew nothing about the visitation until John Collins called up Lake Geneva and Reborn by phone and was told all about it in such instances. He tried to persuade his friends that the powder mill at Pleasant Prairie had blown up again. Capt. Hill, who came in from Milton Junction, reported that the tremor had been felt in his locality.

Occurrence 25 Years Ago. H. D. McKinney, Victor P. Richardson, Cornelius McDonald, and others recall a similar disturbance in the city at two o'clock one morning about 25 years ago. The shock on that occasion was so severe as to persuade those who were in their beds that burglars on the lower deck had decided to get up and interfere with the "pot-ups" on billiard and pool tables.

Ground Sank 15 Inches. In the garden plot back of Al Jones' residence on Cornelia street the ground is reported to have settled in some places to a depth of from 12 to 15 inches. At E. F. Carpenter's home on East street the bottles on dressers and cupboards rattled so violently as to startle the whole family. Water was shaken out of a teacup at the home of Mrs. Louise Bowerman on Academy street. The mirrors at Kimball's furniture store and the bottles in the Voltaire store near the Grand hotel also received a severe shaking up.

At Racine. Racine, Wis., May 26.—At 8:45 this morning this city was visited by a slight earthquake shock and a number of the residents were pretty badly scared. The city hall building was badly shaken, the electric light fixtures being disturbed. The municipal court building was also shaken and desks were moved around. The river rose about a foot, but there was no

The first illustration shows a very practical costume that will be useful to the business girl as well as for general country wear. The skirt has a narrow front and circular sides, the latter being finished at the foot with a shaped piece. The blouse jacket has two tucks up each side over the shoulder to waist, the collar and buttons being of velvet.

Lint of felt, trimmed with spotted silk and quills.

Materials required for the costume: Eight yards 48 inches wide, quarter yard velvet, four and a half yards lining silk for jacket.

Nuttall blue cashmere is used for the second dress; the front panel of the skirt is crossed by three rows of tucks in sets of three. The sides and back are trimmed with stitched straps, with velvet-covered buttons in the corners.

The bodice has a vest of soft white silk gauged in three rows in the upper part. The sides are full, and have three pointed straps over the shoulders, with a button in each point. The sleeves have two tucks made across the lower part; they are gathered into deep cuffs.

Materials required for the dress: Six yards 48 inches wide, 10 buttons, six and a half yards satcen for lining.

Paris Models

Lilac cloth is the material of the left-hand costume. The corsage forms a sort of bolero, fashioned on one side with embroidered black satin buttons. The collar, revers and cuffs are trimmed with black satin.

The chemise is of tucked tulle, with platted full of the same ornamented with gold buttons. Platings of this tulle finish the long, tight sleeves at the wrists. At the back is a girde of the material.

The half-empire skirt is made with breadths or bands, crossed in front simulating a tunic and uniting in the back.

The other costume is a pastel gray wool dotted with black and having a border of black and white checks, which forms the trimming on the corsage and bottom of the skirt.

The fitted corsage simulates a bolero, and is trimmed besides the border with bands of the material and little buttons, with simulated button holes of black liberty. The straps which form the girde are also of black liberty.

The little gumples are tucked tulle, the collar and cuffs are composed of lace ruffles and green liberty ribbon.

The skirt is made and trimmed to correspond and is finished at the bottom with the checked border and a band of black liberty.

The Payne tariff bill as it appears today with the form of the Payne bill but the face of Nelson W. Aldrich.

The head of Seno E. Payne, but the face of Nelson W. Aldrich.

(By Special Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C.—Senator Aldrich has informed his friends that he can put the tariff bill through the senate substantially as it is at present if he so desires. Senator Aldrich says that no amendments will be put on the tariff bill that do not impress him as being for the best interest of the country at large. Senator Aldrich says what will and what will not be the next tariff, and it looks as if he could make good. Thus the Payne bill is originally designed comes lumping up the abdo of the senate plastered with amendments and changes to the point that it is almost unrecognizable as the same bill which Seno E. Payne, the father of tariff revision "downward" introduced into the house of representatives instead of the committee of Mr. Payne we recognize clearly the strong eye, the dominating mouth and chin and the powerful forehead of Nelson W. Aldrich.

What Senator Aldrich says as to his power is undoubtedly so, for with the Democratic support he can command he is in a position to do to the tariff bill just what he sees fit. There is but one man powerful enough to cope with this giant of political strength and that is President William Howard Taft.

Should President Taft decide, as is hinted at in reports from the White house, to demand of Senator Aldrich a more strenuous revision downward in accordance with the Republican pledges of last fall it is possible that the results can be obtained and of course the President always has the power of vetoing a bill if in his wisdom it does not meet with the best interests of the people at large.

FOUR LOSE LIVES IN FIRE;
CHILDREN BURN ON STAGE

Fatal Blaze at Eldon, Iowa—School Exercises in Kentucky Result in Panic.

Eldon, Ia., May 26.—Fire destroyed the home of Mrs. Lora Shaw and burned to death her father, John Carter, and three of her children.

Mrs. Shaw is employed during the night at a restaurant and left the children with their grandfather. The fire was caused by the overturning of a lighted lamp during a storm.

Five Fatally Burned.

Central City, Ky., May 26.—Five children, who took part in the commencement exercises of Mrs. B. C. Boyd's school in this city were burned fatally; the audience was changed from an applauding group, into a fighting mob and several other children were slightly injured.

Panic was averted by the coolness of the men in the audience, who covered the flaming children with their coats.

Four of the children died later. They are: Solma Clay, aged five years; Dorothy Clay, aged seven years; Nell McGarry, five years; Louise Marshall, eight years. Rena May Miller, aged five years, may recover.

Little Dorothy Clay was the unwitting cause of the catastrophe. The little girl had formed in a circle and had drilled back and forth in their white muslin dresses, the audience gathering enthusiasm as the entertainment progressed.

Then the lights were extinguished and an electric candle in the hand of each child flashed out brilliantly. The aunts, mothers, fathers and playmates in the crowd cheered and applauded so enthusiastically that Dorothy grew frightened and dropped her candle. The flame leaped to the white muslin and in a twinkling five dresses were aflame.

EMERGENCY CURRENCY

During the panic an old Irish woman went into one of the banks and asked for her money. When the cashier commenced to count it out, she said: "Oh, never mind; I don't want it. I just wanted to know if it could get it."

This restored confidence on the part of the old lady is what happened to the people of the country at large, after the passage of the emergency currency bill. This bill provided for the issuance of $500,000,000 of new currency in the name of the 4,000 national banks of the country. The provisions of the bill have been complied with as will be seen by the following report from Washington:

"The treasury department has complied with the provisions of the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill and there is now in the vaults of the treasury practically $500,000,000 of emergency currency ready to be issued should occasion arise. This currency is in the name of 4,000 national banks of the country. It has been a tremendous work and has been in progress for nearly a year. Over 10,000 new plates upon which the notes were printed have been engraved and the old plates changed to conform to the requirements of the new law.

"There is no difference in appearance between the regular new national bank currency and the emergency currency. Both are printed from the same plates and when all the new currency shall have been printed there will have been issued $500,000,000 of national bank currency in its new form together with $500,000,000 of emergency currency similar in form but retained in the treasury to be issued only in the discretion of the secretary, should any emergency arise requiring it. Upon this work hundreds of engravers and printers and several hundred counters have been employed at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the treasury proper for nearly a year."

"Not a dollar of the emergency fund has been called for, and yet money is easy in all parts of the land, showing that confidence is fully restored. There never was a shortage of money. It was simply in hiding. Many millions of dollars reposed in safety vaults or were hid away in stockings and business suffered on that account.

"This $500,000,000 is now back in the banks and channels of trade. People have found that they can get it when they want it, and so the supply is ample for all requirements.

A COSTLY STRIKE

The last telegraphers' strike, added by the foolish nine-hour law for operators, has brought about a complete revolution in the dispatching department of the railway service, and the telephone is rapidly taking the place of the keyboard. The problem of securing operators is no longer perplexing, and the service rendered is more satisfactory. The time is not far distant when the railway telegraph operator will be a novelty. A Chicago dispatch says of the system:

"Substitution of the telephone for the telegraph by western railroads has proceeded so far as to threaten the abolition of the telegraph in all railroad work except for incidental service. The Atchafalaya proposes to use the telephone entirely for train dispatching and otherwise, except for very long distances. The Illinois Central is equipping most of its main line for the same change, and intends to use the telephone exclusively in time. On the western end of the St. Paul's Pacific extension the telephone is used in dispatching and it will be used extensively over the entire Puget Sound system. President Earling, of the St. Paul, who was a telegrapher at one time, believes the day of the telegraph in railroad service is passing, never to return. President Ripley of the Atchafalaya says:

"The railroads are extending the use of the telephone everywhere. The old Morse printing machine was out of date long ago. We have all got to use the telephone. It is quicker and admits of frequent repetition, and in calling one gets attention better. As soon as a telephone connection is perfect the telegraph is away ahead of the telegraph. Over very long distances it is not so successful. I consider the telephone as safe as the telegraph in train dispatching 'because in either case the operator simply hears a sound.' It is as easy to make duplicate records and to keep permanent records in one case as in the other. The telephone thus far has not proved more economical, but it is better for several other reasons."

"Another authority says: 'The telegraphers' union by its nagging tactics forced the telephone upon us. We did not like the idea at first but now we do.'"

SENSIBLE ARGUMENTS

State Superintendent Cary has this to say about the state university and the high schools of the state:

"We have in this state an educational system beginning at the kindergarten and ending in the graduate and professional schools in the university. This is a continuous system without break except the break that the university forces upon us at the point where pupils graduate from the high school. The graduate of one grade goes into the next grade without examination and without question. The eighth grade pupils go to the high school, the high school does not question their right to enter, but of course those who are found unable to keep up with the procession are forced out. This is the condition that ought to exist in relation to the university."

Supt. Cary denied the charge that the change would lower standard and also the report that it would mean loss of participation by the university in the Carnegie fund.

"The colleges and universities of the country are simply throttling the high schools," he said, "and the result is that nowhere can you hear a genuine discussion of what high schools should do for their students."

"Preparation for the university means maturity of mind and good habits of study rather than any special or specific kinds of knowledge."

The state has 261 high schools and about one-third of the number are not on the accredited list. The course of study in these schools is practical and they are doing good work in preparing pupils for life rather than for the university because all of them will soon be engaged in the struggle for existence, while but a fragment will seek to enter the university.

Henry M. Flagler, the southern railway king, will be 80 years old in January, 1910. He proposes to celebrate the anniversary by a trip to Key West over his new railroad which is rapidly nearing completion. Some of the deep-water construction is costing at the rate of $1,500,000 per mile. Concrete piers are being built at the rate of one a day.

The people are finding out that when Mayor Carlo said "Obey the law" he meant every word of it. In the case which he has just instituted against the bandmen of Mrs. Walrath, for acknowledged violation of law, the sacredness of an obligation is recognized, and public sentiment will approve the action.

The tax on incomes is wrong in principle because it is a tax on ability and not on property. There is no logical reason why a man capable of earning a $10,000 salary or making the same amount in business should be taxed for the talent. That is legal confiscation which smacks of socialism.

Texas is preparing to put in operation the new bank guarantee law which provides an annual fund of $2,000,000 for the protection of depositors. It remains to be seen whether or not the law is any improvement on the Oklahoma law.

The income tax is likely to be abandoned for a two per cent tax on corporation dividends. The "souless combine" will be asked to pay the freight.

The governor has vetoed the anti-sweating bill and you can now fill the atmosphere with profanity without violating the law. This will be a relief to golfers.

O don't you remember A. Hamid, Ben Bolt, sweet Abdul, who wore a crown? ABDUL HAMID vanta would shake at the sound of his voice and tremble with fear at his frown; they have fled him away in the cool, Ben Bolt, the Young Turks have camped on his frame; his homeland they bring to the beams of a bridge, and sweet Abdul is out of the game. O don't you remember the Yildiz Kiosk, the smoothest kiosk in the hunch? It was there that he herded his wives by the grass and banded them gentle for lunch; they have taken on his wives to the dump-ground, Ben Bolt, a walling and lecherous group; they gave him eight hundred decrees of divorce, and sweet Abdul is deep in the soup. O don't you remember when we wished to kill rats? Old Ab is afraid, if he swallows his grub, he'll get some of that tween his slats; he's feeling all day at his headpiece, Ben Bolt, to see if it's still on his neck; in Turkey, they say, there's the dawn of reform, but sweet Abdul's reduced to a wretch.

THE KING AND THE MAID.

This is a love story in real life of a king who gave up his kingdom for the sake of a maid.

To be sure, it wasn't much of a kingdom, consisting mostly of phosphate rocks. But he was monarch of all he surveyed—except when the phosphate trust issued an order from London.

John Davis Murray is the name of the ex-king. He graduated a few years ago at Purdue university, Indiana, and went out to the Christmas Islands, in the Pacific ocean, to seek his fortune.

John got to be very popular with the natives of the three little islands, and they made him king.

It was a sort of George Ade-comic-opera style of king, with a standing army about the size of a corporate's guard and a gorgeously gilded throne, and issued decrees written on both sides of a sheet of foolscap, with an imperial seal as big as your fist.

All the same he was king—under the phosphate trust.

He might have married a whole harem of savage beauties and founded the dynasty of the house of Murray. But—

Here is the romance on the top of romance: He turned his back on his empire, doffed his crown, went to London and—for love—married Margaret McMeekin, a sweet Irish lass.

The king got acquainted with Margaret when he was loafing around London town on a kingly vacation.

Pretty story!

Heads like some of those things you used to devour from the voracious pages of Donna and Captain Marryat or sweet Robert Louis Stevenson.

You see, John Davis Murray, Hoosier, found in England a greater king than himself.

Edward Rex? No. The king he came across is bigger than Edward, king of England, Ireland and Scotland, emperor of India, defender of the faith, etc. Who then?

Love is the greater king!

All lesser sovereigns bow to his kingly scepter, and his mild but imperious sway moves the minds and hearts of all, be they potentates or peasants.

That king told King Murray he must decide between his rocks, his natives, his job as easy boss and Margaret, the one woman. And John Murray promptly abdicated.

P. S.—John is worth a million or so in cold cash—safe in the vaults of the Bank of England—got from his phosphate royalties.

Leaders in Philadelphia's demand for better cheaper street car service. At top, Charles D. Hope. Below, John T. Murphy.

Philadelphia.—It is not often that the Quaker city arouses itself to action, but when it does, there is always a good fight on. She is now out after the Rapid Transit company. The troubles arose when the company refused to sell six-for-a-quarter tickets and to give universal transfers.

The people held Mayor Reyburn and Senator Clarence Wolf, members of the Rapid Transit company's board of directors, responsible. A gigantic rally and fierce speeches at the Academy of Music are only part of the demonstration. Thousands of people have refused to ride on the cars and the whole city is wrought up as it has not been in many years. Two of the leaders in the fight against the Rapid Transit company are Charles D. Hope and John T. Murphy. These two men have been active in organizing and conducting the demonstrations against the company.

Governor Shafroth of Colorado bidding the pathfinders in the Chalmers-Detroit car farewell, as they start on their pathfinding journey from Denver to Mexico City.

Denver, Colo.—The Chalmers-Detroit car that is blazing the trail for the flag to flag contest, Denver to Mexico City, which will be run for the Waldgreen trophy, was sent on its way from the Colorado state capital by Governor Shafroth of Colorado.

The first objective point of the car is El Paso. From here it will cross into Mexico. Then will begin the real hard work of the trip, because no automobile has ever traveled this route before, and the Chalmers-Detroit car is a pathfinder in every sense of the word.

The flag to flag contest, which will take place next autumn, starting probably about November 1, will be for the Waldgreen trophy, which is in the form of a mountain, made of the metals of the United States and Mexico, with the flags of the two countries worked out in metal on the face of the mountain.

It is expected that scores of automobiles will take part in this friendly invasion of the great republic at the south.

The "30" Pathfinder is the same car that did 298 miles a day for 10 consecutive days from August 9 to November 17 last year.

Altogether this car had been driven 32,000 miles before starting on the difficult pathfinding trip. The car is driven by William Kulpner who went fresh from a victory in a Chalmers-Detroit "forty" at the Fort George New York hill climb to Denver to pilot the car on its long journey.

The pathfinder car is carrying 2,200 pounds of overhead weight on the trip, but has gone through in splendid shape. The fourth day out it made 146.8 miles and on the route climbed 14,658 feet, and on the route climbed 14,658 feet, and on the route climbed 14,658 feet, and on the route climbed 14,658 feet.

The route of the pathfinder is literally a trip along the mountain tops. The start of the car in Denver was at an altitude of 5,173 feet, and it will finish in Mexico City at an altitude of 8,000 feet. At no point during the journey does the car drop lower than 3,500 feet above sea level.

A Wall Street Confession.

The broker runs the most profitable end of the game. Perhaps you have never realized that most New York stock exchange houses with any sort of clientele maintain their offices on what they make on interest charges, which every monthly statement shows, and which not one of a hundred speculators can verify. The commission and interest charges that go to the brokerage firm make the percentage an almost impossible one to overcome. This percentage is far bigger than in roulette. Do you think you can win in the long run playing roulette? If you think you can, then go ahead and speculate. If in doubt, then let me tell you that in almost three years I had over 200 accounts, and not only have I never seen anybody make any money to keep, but I have seen many a fortune wiped out.—Everybody's.

Taste of Food in Fish.

Some fish, like the carp and catfish, are able to taste food with the skin on the outside of their body or even with their fins or tails as well as in the mouth. The carp, for instance, is able to detect food with the scales anywhere on the outside of its body.

Another Warning.

The tendency is to take too much exercise rather than too little. If you pay too much attention to the development of the body, the intellect and the soul suffer.—Dr. Kingdon, in Grand Magazine.

WITH THE LIBERIAN COMMISSION IN MONROVIA. THE WHITE HOUSE AT LIBERIA AT TOP AND THE AMERICAN LEGATION BELOW.

Monrovia, Liberia.—A great public demonstration attended the landing of the United States Liberator commission which is to investigate conditions in the African republic. The United States cruisers which conveyed the commission to Liberia were forced to anchor three miles off the coast and the commission was conveyed in small boats to the government wharves. President Arthur Barclay headed the reception committee appointed to do honor to the distinguished visitors. They were taken to the official residence of President Barclay, the White House of Liberia. Ernest Lyons, the United States consul general at Monrovia, welcomed them to the American legation, which is one of the most attractive residences in the capital city. Every effort will be made to show the needs of Liberia to the commission in the hope of interesting them in behalf of the little republic, which is really the offspring of United States philanthropy.

ONE OF THE WRIGHT BROTHERS' NEW RIVALS IN AVIATION. BIPLANE BUILT BY COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY AERO CLUB.

The Columbia I, called biplane by its builders, the members of the Columbia University Aero club, has been completed, but much secrecy is being shown regarding its motive power and the data upon which a formal trial will be given. The machine is 27 feet long, 6 feet wide and 5 feet high. The framework is made of bamboo, with steel joints. The ribs and struts are of yellow pine, and the surfaces are covered with light canvas. The biplane is braced with two planes which, according to the expectations of the builders, the longitudinal equilibrium will be maintained by manipulating the forward rudder. Adjusting planes and the rear vertical rudder are expected to maintain the lateral equilibrium. The machine is now in the Columbia University powerhouse, at 110th street and the Hudson, where it was constructed. Francis L. Rivers is president of the Aero club.

A HOT SHOT FOR PRESIDENT KIRBY

JOHN MITCHELL REPLIES TO SPEECH OF MANUFACTURERS' PRESIDENT.

CONDEMNS HIS UTTERANCES

Assails the Association as Advocates of Violence and Anarchy and Calls its Designs Against the Workingman Un-American.

New York, May 26.—Stirred by the attack on organized labor made by John Kirby, of Dayton, O., in his acceptance of the presidency of the National Association of Manufacturers, John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers, has written a hot reply for the current issue of the National Civic Federation Review.

Mr. Mitchell quotes Mr. Kirby as saying that he has been elected to the presidency of the National Association of Manufacturers, not on account of his ability or on account of his national reputation, but because the members of the association knew where he stood on the labor question.

Illustrates Kirby's Position. He then goes on to illustrate where Mr. Kirby stands on this question, by contrasting his utterances on the subject of organized labor with those of President Taft, Pope Leo XIII, Cardinal Manning, Gladstone, the late Mark Hanna, Potter Palmer, Wendell Phillips, the late Bishop Potter and Melville B. Ingalls.

From this parallel, Mr. Mitchell deduces that "the only truthful and sane declaration made by the newly chosen spokesman of the National Association of Manufacturers is that in association he says: 'I have not been elected as your president on account of my ability.'"

"Paradoxical as it may appear," concludes Mr. Mitchell, "the representatives of this employers' association in one breath decry and denounce what they term 'class division,' and 'class hatred,' and in the next breath malign and berate their fellow citizens who are workingmen, and all other groups in society in sympathy with the legitimate purposes and high ideals of the labor movement. They claim and proclaim the right and necessity of organization among employers, yet deny to workingmen the right of organization and combination."

Advocate Violence and Anarchy. "They prate about law and order, yet advocate violence and anarchy; they suggest the use of the cannon as a means of dispersing the workingmen; they malign and traduce the great majority of the employers of labor who refuse to join them in carrying forward their unholy and un-American designs to destroy the organized labor movement; and to cap the climax of their inconsistency they impugn the motives and question the intelligence of the religious, educational and philanthropic institutions of our country simply because these institutions have opened their doors to the organized labor movement and have listened respectfully to the claims made in behalf of the workingmen and women whose brain and brawn have contributed in no small degree to the commercial, intellectual and moral supremacy of the nation."

"How much better would it be for themselves, how much more would it contribute to the honor and glory of our common country, if these gentlemen of the National Association of Manufacturers would examine with open minds and intelligent discernment the real purpose, policy and philosophy of the American labor movement."

STEEL TRUST LAUDS ROGERS. Praises Dead Old Magnate and Elects Young Morgan.

New York, May 26.—A testimonial to the memory of Henry H. Rogers, offered by Judge Gary, was adopted by the directors of the United States Steel Corporation. The memorial says:

"With respect to the business interests of this country, Mr. Rogers was a stalwart among stalwarts. His natural capacity, wide experience, keen perception and sound judgment entitled him to a position in the first ranks of successful business men. In the consideration of the many complicated questions which have arisen concerning the corporation, he has been of great influence and benefit."

"A great man has gone from our midst. His memory will abide in our affections."

J. P. Morgan, Jr., was elected a director of the corporation and a member of the finance committee, to succeed Mr. Rogers.

Fond du Lac Entertains Doctors. Fond du Lac, Wis., May 26.—The Homoeopathic Medical Society of Wisconsin is holding its forty-fifth annual meeting here, the headquarters being at the Palmer house.

Dr. F. A. Walters of Stevens Point, the president, is presiding over the general sessions, and an interesting program is being carried out. Physicians from all parts of this and adjoining states are in attendance. The meeting will close tomorrow evening.

Beware of Unpunctuality. The man who is not punctual in keeping appointments becomes a nuisance and the people get so tired of him that they write to bury him in the oblivion of failure, where he can worry and annoy them no more.

How to Color Hyacinths. A hyacinth can be easily colored a delicate pink by putting the stem in a bottle of red ink and leaving it there for an hour.

OPERATOR THWARTS BANDITS.

Telegraph Warning of Plan to Rob Rio Grande Train.

Grand Junction, Col., May 26.—An attempted hold-up of the Denver & Rio Grande passenger train No. 4 from Ogden to Denver was probably prevented by the action of the telegraph operator at Thompson, Utah.

Overhearing a conversation by two men regarding gold shipments from Nevada, usually sent to the Denver mint on No. 4, the operator telegraphed to Helper, Utah, where a sheriff's posse boarded the train.

Train No. 4 was run through Thompson without stopping, but guards on train No. 8, which followed, exchanged shots with a supposed tramp at that place.

Convention of Kansas Bankers.

Wichita, Kan., May 26.—One of the largest and most enthusiastic of the conventions of the Kansas Bankers' association opened in the rooms of the Wichita Consistory today. President W. M. Peck of Concordia delivered an interesting annual address on "Messages of the Presidents from 1887 to 1909." Other speakers the first day were Bank Commissioner J. N. Dole and Lucius Baker, president of the Chicago Savings Bank. This evening the visiting bankers and ladies will be given a banquet by the Wichita Clearing House association. Tomorrow's speakers include Judge C. E. Lobdell, C. C. K. Scoville of Senece, Arthur Reynolds of Des Moines and James T. Bradley of Kansas City.

Sends Pardon by Phone.

Topolka, Kan., May 26.—Gov. Stubbs sent a pardon by long-distance telephone to John Hays, thought to be dying at Pittsburg, Kan., from a mine accident. Hays had been paroled from the penitentiary by former Gov. Hoch but had his friends ask for a pardon, that he might die a free man. He was convicted of robbery.

C. M. & St. P. Official Dead.

Kalamazoo, Mich., May 26.—Robert C. Jones, traveling passenger agent in Michigan for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, died suddenly from heart trouble in his room at the Hickman hotel. Mr. Jones lived in Detroit.

SCIENCE NOTES

Plans are being perfected for two important Antarctic expeditions for the future, one has been arranged in detail by Dr. W. H. Dyer, of the British Oceanographic Laboratory, which will sail during the season of 1911 and will cost about $250,000, which amount has been already released for the purpose. According to Robert E. Peary, carrying on an extensive geographical work in the North Atlantic Ocean between Cape Town, as well as in the Weddell and Beaufort seas; to the east and west of Cape Land, and to investigate the interior of Antarctica in that continent. Part of the project is to establish a base on the Antarctic coast, starting at some suitable base in the vicinity of Cape Land, and carrying on at McMurdo Bay, Victoria Land, and the icebergs and other geographical features. The expedition will also conduct a new expedition to South Pole and other details of which have already been settled, have been arranged under the auspices of the International Polar Exploration Commission at Brussels.

The State of Dakota has made provision for the establishment of a biological station to be located on the shores of Devils Lake, North Dakota. This station will be for the purpose of conducting the study of lake problems, inasmuch as Devils Lake is a large body of brackish water with no outlet and represents a collected water supply of a large lake, the drainage basin of which is under the charge of the biological department of the State University, of which Prof. Melvin A. Brauer is head.

The Japanese are keenly alive to the value of the wireless systems of communication and at the present time nearly every vessel engaged in international trade is equipped with a wireless installation. In the navy all ships, from battleships down to torpedo-boat destroyers, are equipped with wireless telegraph, and the wireless telephone has been successfully used in naval operations. The wireless is in naval operations in the communication department and in the navy. The Japanese system of wireless telegraph used has been developed in Japan and is stated to differ from the Marconi and De Forest systems.

A keen eyesight and an abundance of daylight has heretofore been necessary for the purpose of sorting colors into the various shades of color in which they are put up. All efforts to perform this operation by artificial light have been unsuccessful in the respect that the results were never satisfactory and the work was slow and severe on the eyes of the worker. With the introduction of the new tungsten lamp it has been discovered that this work may be done with ease and satisfaction. The illumination of these lamps that enables the worker to detect the most delicate degrees of difference in the shading of the wrapper.

The total electric light and power generating capacity in Japan at the end of 1908 was 84,000 kw., an increase of 12,500 kw. over 1907. Of this capacity 55,500 kw. was generated by steam, 21,000 kw. by waterpower and 105 kw. by gas engines. Last year the Tokyo Electric Light Company began taking power from Katsura, 47 miles distant, the voltage being 55,000.

Word's Meaning Modernized.

Literally the word "rajah" means "king"; and "maharajah" the "great king," or ruler over several kings; but, generally speaking, the titles "rajah," "maharajah" and "nawab" have no greater significance than the words "feudal lords," as used in medieval times in Europe. Many of them have been made by the will of the reigning chief; many bestowed for meritorious acts and deeds.

The Family Plate.

Little Ellen was in the first grade; the teacher wrote the word "dab" on the board and asked her what it was. Ellen shook her head; then the teacher thought he would help her out and said, "What did you eat out from this morning?" Ellen spoke up and said, "We ate off from pancakes this morning."—The Delinquent.

STRIKE, RACE WAR DOWN IN ATLANTA

FIGHT ON NEGROES CAUSES TIE-UP OF THE GEORGIA RAILROAD.

HARD PROBLEM FOR NEILL

United States Labor Commissioner Attempts to Settle the Trouble—Federal Courts May Take Action to Move the Mails.

Atlanta, Ga., May 26.—United States Labor Commissioner Neill discovered, when he started his investigation of the Georgia railroad strike, that less than 100 trainmen have succeeded in stopping all train service in a territory 170 miles long and 25 to 100 miles wide.

As emissary of the national board of mediation to face first the race problem, the force behind the strike; second an announced wish of many persons in this section to have Georgians settle this question by arbitration, and, third, the necessity of moving the United States mails immovably.

Within two hours after his arrival Mr. Neill was in private conference with General Manager Scott of the Georgia railroad, with no intimation as to when the negotiations might bring results.

Rely on Automobiles.

What a remarkable feat this handful of union firemen accomplished and what power was behind them became apparent when a considerable section of this state was compelled to rely on automobiles for passenger, mail and express service, and when the transportation of such necessities of life as food dropped back to the methods of a former degree of civilization, namely, to wagons and even pack animals.

The four-acre firemen alone did not produce this situation. It was the communities which the railroad served that stopped every wheel of the system during the past three days; not the officials of these communities, but a few men who are said to have fighting blood in their veins, who came forward and announced that negro firemen should not be given seniority over white firemen. From some hidden source of public opinion these men have up to now made good this racial ultimatum.

Few of these men were firemen, some did not even claim to be acquainted with striking firemen. They accomplished the tie-up without serious acts of violence, with a few cases of throwing stones, which appear to have been accomplished as warnings of what might happen if trains continued to run.

Demands of the Fireman.

A settlement by arbitration should not be difficult so far as the strikers' demands are concerned. Vice-President Hall of the firemen's organization said, because the firemen are not trying to exact a hard and fast ultimatum. They struck because too many white firemen were replaced by negro firemen. The railroad officials declare that the negroes were put in these positions as rewards for faithful service and that they are within their legal rights in such action. Upon this one crucial point of the controversy there has as yet been no sign of agreement.

The officials of the road were in almost continual conference and it was reported that some of the directors strongly favored Gov. Smith's proposition for each side to select three Georgians as arbitrators. General Manager Scott would not say whether this offer would be accepted.

Hand cars, automobiles and interurban cars made little impression upon the 3,000 pounds of delayed mails in the Atlanta post office. Here and there in the strike district, a rural postmaster shouldered a sack of outgoing mail and after hours of hard work riding and walking managed to reach an unaffected railroad station.

Federal Courts May Act.

Reports were current that the federal courts might interfere and place guards on trains to get the mails through. No such action, however, developed locally.

United States District Attorney Irwin is making a quiet investigation of the strike. Judge Pardo of the United States circuit court of appeals said he had not seen Mr. Irwin and that he has heard of no attempt to secure a federal order to facilitate the strikers' mail service.

The strikers have announced that they are willing to fire engines to carry mails, but that such engines must carry mails only and not passengers.

Reports that the necessities of life were lacking in some communities caused Gov. Smith to telegraph along the line of the Georgia railroad inquiring whether there was any food shortage. No replies indicating such a condition were received. Business men, however, complained of serious financial loss.

Brothers Shot; One Dead.

Breton, Ill., May 26.—John Bradley is dead and his brother, Burr Bradley, is dying from a gunshot wound under the heart as the result of a shooting affray at Hildreth, near Breton. The shooting is said to have been done by Harry Hollar.

Will Plead Fraud Cases.

Just Wanted to Be.

Mollie's mother is a Christian Scientist, and six-year-old Mollie has been mentally "healed" more than once. Usually she's pleasantly unconcerned. But one day recently came rebellion. She had been "naughty" and had not yet repented. And mother, all unkindly for once of the power of mind over matter, set gazing at her daughter in plain, what-shall-I-do-next despair. But Mollie interpreted that gaze differently. For several seconds she wriggled in obvious discomfort under it. Then she straightened up and looked her mother squarely in the eye. "Now, mamma, stop it!" she cried, sharply. "You needn't try any more of your absent treatment on me! I tell you I'm bad and I want to be bad!"

ATTORNEY GENERAL SETTLES QUESTION

F. L. Gilbert Confirms Antislavery
Opinion in Regard to Teachers' Certificates.

A few weeks ago you published an article of mine relative to the effect that the consolidation of the two superintendent districts would have on teachers' certificates.
On account of various questions that have come up since then, it seemed advisable to have a ruling on the matter from a higher authority.
So, through the district attorney, I have submitted several questions to Attorney General F. L. Gilbert, and he replies as follows:
"Office of Attorney General,
Madison, Wis., May 20, 1900.
"John L. Fisher, District Attorney, Janesville, Wis.
"Dear Sir:—I have your communication of the 15th inst., containing a letter from O. D. Antislavery, county superintendent. Mr. Antislavery states that the county board of Rock county has passed a resolution relating the two superintendent districts of the county in one district, which action will take effect the first Monday in July next. He has asked 'what effect this consolidation of districts will have upon teachers' certificates in the county.' At the present time, teachers' certificates are issued, good only within the boundaries of each superintendent district. These teachers' licenses are not contracts, and are therefore subject to revocation. However, the manner they may be revoked, the county board may not indirectly revoke these teachers' certificates by eliminating the boundaries of the superintendent districts. The boundaries of these districts will be just as easily ascertained after the resolution to the county board goes into effect as now. I do not think that the action of the county board in consolidating the districts could enlarge the authority or privilege of the teachers' certificates so as to make the holders licensed to teach in the whole county. I am, however, of the opinion that the consolidation of the superintendent districts will have no effect whatever upon the teachers' certificates now in force, but that they will be good in the towns constituting the district in which they were issued. I am, therefore, of the opinion that no legislation upon the subject is necessary.
"Yours very truly,
"F. L. GILBERT,
"Attorney General."

This ruling practically sustains that made by the district attorney and anticipates issued before the consolidation will have the same value after consolidation as they now have, and will be in force in the same parts of the county. Therefore, a teacher holding such a certificate and desiring to go into the other half of the county to teach, would need to get the superintendent of the whole county to issue a transfer certificate. In a similar manner to what has been done in the past. But certificates issued after the first Monday of July will be good for the whole county.
The revocation of certificates appeared in the attorney general's letter is provided for by sections 451, 452, and 453, laws of 1900, and a certificate may be revoked for immoral character, delinquency in learning, or inability to teach. County certificates may be revoked by the county superintendent, and state certificates by the state superintendent; but only after a fair examination and trial of the teacher concerned.
This ruling by Attorney General Gilbert should definitely settle the questions about the effect of consolidation of the superintendent districts on teachers' certificates in Rock county, and we trust that no other difficulties will arise on this subject.
O. D. ANTISLAVY.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

MOTHER, know thy son," is the precept that a recent experience has burned into my brain.
For I recently interviewed Chester Jordan's mother.

Chester Jordan is the Boston man who has just been convicted of killing his wife, cold bloodedly carving her life, several parts and trying to dispose of the body by packing it into a trunk.

During the trial the most terrible things about his past life were brought out, many of them so bad that the newspapers did not even dare to print them.

Just before the trial I talked with his mother. She said that so far as she knew her son had always been a model boy. She said that up to the time of the murder he had never given her a moment's worry.

Which shows that she knew absolutely nothing about her son.

How many mothers really do?

How many mothers really try as hard as they might,
to?

The difficulty is that when a boy gets out of short trousers he goes into an unknown country into which his mother seldom takes the trouble to follow him. She hardly knows his new language.

If women would learn to speak the language of boydom—a language made up of the nicknames of the boys' comrades and the technical terms of his sports—they would find that knowledge of more enduring worth than all the French or German they ever studied.

I met a mother the other day who has deliberately studied this language. She knows the name of every man on the football and baseball teams, and the position he holds. She knows all the terms of these and other sports. If her son tells her about his day at college, about a football or basketball game, he does not need to translate himself. She can follow him perfectly and knows when to enthuse and when to be sympathetic.

So he talks to her as he would not to an ordinary mother.

"I'm not the least bit a sport" by nature," she said. "I found it awfully hard work to understand all about goals and runs and things like that, but it paid."

Time spent that way usually does.

"To think once self he true
And it shall follow in the night the day
Thou cannot not then be false to any mail."

Swathed like a mummy and lying in a cot in the Panxutawney (Pa.)
hospital, James Sharkey, who a week ago fell 90 feet from a bridge, propped with one eye from his bandages and watched the ceremony that made him a husband. Miss Hester McLaughlin, daughter of Justice of the Peace J. B. McLaughlin, of Sumnerville, was the bride. The marriage register was signed by the injured man, but he had to hold the pen between his teeth to do it, making his mark. Sharkey fell from a railroad bridge and both arms and one leg were broken, his abdomen was ripped open and his face was bruised almost beyond recognition, and one eyelid split. He did not lose consciousness and demanded that his wedding plans be carried out.

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"My man!" cried the fellow in amazement, looking at the fellow in the black bag. "You are a man, aren't you?"

"That's my affair," said Kirkwood briskly. "Are you engaged?"

"If you mean my wife," returned the fellow shyly, "I have."

"Ten shillings, then, if you get me out of here in one minute and to—any—Troy Park Corner in fifteen."

"Do!" demanded the fellow aggressively.

Kirkwood motioned toward the passageway. "There's a lady with me—there. Quick now!"

Still the man did not move. "Ten bob," he bargained, "and you run off with the stuff of your fair."

Kirkwood tapped his shoulder.

"Come now, my man, is it good?"

"A good deal," said the fellow. "By way of answer the fellow scrambled hastily up to the box and snatched at the reins. 'Clk! Gooe! hup!' he cried sonorously."

The gloom of the tunnel inclosed them briefly as the lights of the locomotive flashed by and the wheels began to roll more easily. Kirkwood drew back with a sigh of relief.

"Thank God!" he said softly. "The girl had no words."

Worried by her silence, Kirkwood, lest the strain ended, she might be at the point of fainting, he let up the shade and lowered the window at her side.

She seemed to have collapsed in her corner. Against the dark upholstery her hair shone like pale gold in the half light. Her eyes were closed, and she held a handkerchief to her lips. The other hand lay limp.

"Miss Calendar?"

"She started, and something bulky fell from the seat and thumped heavily on the floor. Kirkwood bent to pick it up and so for the first time was made aware that she had brought with her a small black gladstone bag of considerable weight. As he placed it on the forward seat her eyes met."

"I didn't know," he began.

"It was to get that," she hastened to explain, "that my father sent me."

"I have been thinking that there is absolutely no way I know of to thank you properly. And I have been wondering," she continued, with unaffected candor, "what you must be thinking of me."

"What should I think of you, Miss Calendar?"

"With the air of a weary child who had her head against the cushions again, face to face, and watched him through lowered lashes, unsmiling."

"You might be thinking that an explanation is due you. Even the way we were brought together was extraordinary," Mr. Kirkwood. "You must be"

"You have every right," she affirmed gently.

"Then please to tell me frankly are you going into any further danger?"

"And is that the only reason you crave at my hands, Mr. Kirkwood?"

"Without impertinence?"

"For a little time, waiting for him to conclude his vague phrases, she watched him in an expectant silence. But the man was diffident to a degree. At length, somewhat unconsciously, 'I think not,' she answered. 'No; there will be no danger awaiting me at Mrs. Hallam's. You need not fear for me any more. Thank you.'"

"He lifted his brows at the unfamiliar name. 'Mrs. Hallam?'"

"I am going to her house in Craven street."

"Your father is to meet you there?"

"He promised to."

"But if he shouldn't?"

"Why?" Her eyes clouded. She pursed her lips over the conjectural annoyance. "Why, in that event I suppose it would be very embarrassing. You see, I don't know Mrs. Hallam. I don't know that she expects me unless my father is already there. They are old friends. I could drive round, for a while, and come back, I

"I don't see it that way,"

"I do. You have made me like you very much, Mr. Kirkwood."

"I'm glad," he said simply, "very glad if that's the case and presupposing I deserve it. Personally, I have been rather forward."

"No; only kind and a gentleman,"

"But—please!" he protested.

"Oh, but I mean it, every word! Why shouldn't I? In a little while, ten minutes, half an hour, we shall have seen the last of each other. Why should I not tell you how I appreciate all that you have unselfishly done for me?"

"If you put it that way, I'm sure I don't know, beyond that it embarrasses me horribly to have you overestimate me so. If any courage has been shown this night it is yours. But I'm forgetting again." He thought to divert her. "Where shall I tell the cabby to go this time, Miss Calendar?"

"Craven street, please," said the girl and added a house number. "I am to meet my father there with this," indicating the gladstone bag.

CHAPTER VI.

KIRKWOOD thrust head and shoulders out of the window and instructed the cabby accordingly, but his nose had been ineffectual, as he found when he sat back again. Quite composedly the girl took up the thread of conversation where it had been broken off.

"It's rather hard to keep silence when you've been so good. I don't want you to think me less generous than myself; but, truly, I can tell you nothing." She sighed a trace resentfully, or so he thought. "There is little enough in this—this wretched affair that I understand myself, and that little I may not tell. I want you to know that."

"I understand, Miss Calendar."

"There's one thing I may say, however. I have done nothing wrong tonight, I believe," she added quickly.

"I've never for an instant questioned," he returned, with a quiver of shame, for what he said was not true.

"Thank you."

The four wheeler swung out of Oxford street into Clarendon Cross road. Kirkwood noted the fact with a feeling of some relief that their ride was to be so short. Like many of his fellow sufferers from the artistic temperament, he was acutely disconcerted by spoken words of praise and gratitude.

Nor had she fully relieved her mind nor voiced all that perturbed her. "There's one thing more," she said presently—"my father. I—I hope you will think charitably of him."

"Indeed, I've no reason or right to think otherwise."

"I was afraid—afraid his actions might have seemed peculiar tonight."

"There are lots of things I don't understand, Miss Calendar. Some day perhaps it will all clear up—this trouble of yours. At least, one supposes it is trouble of some sort. And then you will tell me the whole story. Won't you?" Kirkwood insisted.

"I'm afraid not," she said, with a smile of shadowed sadness. "We are to say good night in a moment or two, and it will be goodbye as well. It's unlikely that we shall ever meet again."

"I refuse positively to take such a gloomy view of the case."

She shook her head, laughing with him, but with shy regret. "It's so, none the less. We are leaving London this very night, my father and I—leaving England, for that matter."

"Leaving England?" he echoed.

"You're not by any chance bound for America, are you?"

"I can't tell you."

"But you can tell me this—are you booked on the Atlantic?"

"No. It is—quite another boat."

"Of course," he commented savagely. "It wouldn't be me to have any sort of luck."

"Since we are to say goodbye so very soon," suggested Kirkwood, "may I ask a parting favor, Miss Calendar?"

She regarded him with friendly eyes. "You have every right," she affirmed gently.

"Then please to tell me frankly are you going into any further danger?"

"And is that the only reason you crave at my hands, Mr. Kirkwood?"

KIRKWOOD thrust head and shoulders out of the window and instructed the cabby accordingly, but his nose had been ineffectual, as he found when he sat back again. Quite composedly the girl took up the thread of conversation where it had been broken off.

"It's rather hard to keep silence when you've been so good. I don't want you to think me less generous than myself; but, truly, I can tell you nothing." She sighed a trace resentfully, or so he thought. "There is little enough in this—this wretched affair that I understand myself, and that little I may not tell. I want you to know that."

"I understand, Miss Calendar."

"There's one thing I may say, however. I have done nothing wrong tonight, I believe," she added quickly.

"I've never for an instant questioned," he returned, with a quiver of shame, for what he said was not true.

"Thank you."

The four wheeler swung out of Oxford street into Clarendon Cross road. Kirkwood noted the fact with a feeling of some relief that their ride was to be so short. Like many of his fellow sufferers from the artistic temperament, he was acutely disconcerted by spoken words of praise and gratitude.

Nor had she fully relieved her mind nor voiced all that perturbed her. "There's one thing more," she said presently—"my father. I—I hope you will think charitably of him."

"Indeed, I've no reason or right to think otherwise."

"I was afraid—afraid his actions might have seemed peculiar tonight."

"There are lots of things I don't understand, Miss Calendar. Some day perhaps it will all clear up—this trouble of yours. At least, one supposes it is trouble of some sort. And then you will tell me the whole story. Won't you?" Kirkwood insisted.

"I refuse positively to take such a gloomy view of the case."

She shook her head, laughing with him, but with shy regret. "It's so, none the less. We are leaving London this very night, my father and I—leaving England, for that matter."

"Leaving England?" he echoed.

"You're not by any chance bound for America, are you?"

"I can't tell you."

"But you can tell me this—are you booked on the Atlantic?"

"No. It is—quite another boat."

"Of course," he commented savagely. "It wouldn't be me to have any sort of luck."

"Since we are to say goodbye so very soon," suggested Kirkwood, "may I ask a parting favor, Miss Calendar?"

She regarded him with friendly eyes. "You have every right," she affirmed gently.

"Then please to tell me frankly are you going into any further danger?"

"And is that the only reason you crave at my hands, Mr. Kirkwood?"

"Without impertinence?"

"For a little time, waiting for him to conclude his vague phrases, she watched him in an expectant silence. But the man was diffident to a degree. At length, somewhat unconsciously, 'I think not,' she answered. 'No; there will be no danger awaiting me at Mrs. Hallam's. You need not fear for me any more. Thank you.'"

"He lifted his brows at the unfamiliar name. 'Mrs. Hallam?'"

"I am going to her house in Craven street."

"Your father is to meet you there?"
